Camp Casey, an organization in Royal Oak that brings free horseback riding to the doorsteps of young cancer patients and their families has been selected as a winner in Toyota's 100 Cars for Good program.

The 100 Cars for Good program is a major new philanthropic initiative from Toyota that is awarding 100 cars to 100 U.S. nonprofits over the course of 100 days. Public voting began on May 9. Each day, five organizations are profiled on the 100 Cars for Good Facebook page and voters may vote for the nonprofit they feel is most deserving of the vehicle. A vehicle will be awarded each day through August 16. Voters may place one vote per day over the course of the program.

Camp Casey will receive a new Toyota Tundra truck, which will allow it to double the number of families it is able to visit throughout the state.

"The outpouring of support and interest in the Toyota 100 Cars for Good program has been tremendous," said Jim Wiseman, Group Vice President of Toyota Motor North America, Inc. "It is amazing to see how this program has brought individuals, organizations and communities together. We are equally excited to see Camp Casey utilize their new vehicle to make an even greater impact in the community."

Runners-up in the program each receive $1,000. Additional details on 100 Cars for Good as well as information on all of the program's finalists are available at www.carsforgood.com
